

Protac Ball Blanket™

soothing and sensory-stimulating

The Protac Ball Blanket™ is a recognised aid for children, adults and the elderly who suffer from sleep disorders and motor and psychological unrest. The pressure and weight of the balls on the body allows the user to calm down, collect their thoughts and feel secure. This results in a deeper, better sleep and more energy throughout the day. Available in three styles.

Flexible

The Flexible Blanket has pockets with removable inner bags for the balls. This makes it possible to customise the blankets to the users' individual need for sensory stimulation. Another characteristic of the Flexible range is the movement of the balls, which provide a variation of sensory stimuli. Can be taken apart and washed in a regular washing machine.

Calm

The Calm Blanket is designed with channels where the balls lie in long rows. The Calm range is developed for users who experience a need for sensory stimulation, and have tactile defensiveness, experience sensitivity to sound or easily experience over-stimulation through unknown and varied sensory input. The balls are more compact for a more snug fit. Can be taken apart and washed in a regular washing machine.

Classic

The Classic Blanket is the original Protac Ball Blanket. The balls are divided into pockets. This ensures that the movement of the balls provides a variation in the sensory stimuli. The Classic is ideal for people who need a variation of sensory input in order to experience awareness of their bodies and a sense of calm. Balls cannot be removed from the Classic Blanket. An industrial washing machine is required.

About Protac A/S

Protac is an innovative and socially responsible company, established in 1994. The founding idea of the company is based on theories of sensory integration. These theories focus on the different senses of the body and how these can be positively influenced. The products include plastic balls, which affect the tactile and proprioceptive senses through weight and deep touch pressure to improve body awareness and increase general well-being.
